17	YouTube	free	It doesn't get much more perfect than this. YouTube is an app you probably already have and is free to download if you don't. Now that it has embraced 360-degree videos the amount of VR content is growing by the day. Inside a YouTube 360-degree video you can look around as if you were really there. Thanks to more 360-degree cameras hitting the market, both professionals and amateurs alike are uploading footage. This is a great place to dip your virtual toes into the excitingly
18	InCell VR	free	Ever wondered what it would feel like to be shrunk down small enough to enter the human body? If you've seen the Inner Space movie you'll probably have ideas of what that's like but InCell VR shatters them brilliantly. This simple game has a basic story about protecting a human at the cellular level but in reality, or virtual reality rather, you're playing a racing game where you dodge or collect objects. It's fun, addictive and jaw dropping in its size and beautiful colours. Plus you can pretend you're doing good, not just goofing off in a VR headset.
19	Vrse		Vrse is like a platform within virtual reality, the Google of VR if you like. Except in this case a lot of the content created is produced by Vrse, making it a bit more like Netflix with its Originals, only in VR. Everything is laid out nicely and keeps content varied from investigative journalism videos in VR to immersive music videos. One excellent collaboration features Michael Fassbender and Kristen Wiig in a film called Take Flight, which was created with The New York Times. This is a growing platform that's not to be missed.
20	Lamper VR: Firefly Rescue	£0.79 (US$0.99, AU$1.49)	Lamper returns in this sequel that offers a polished and entertaining VR experience. Control Lamper the firefly as you navigate stunning worlds using fireballs and power-ups to get by enemies. Flight is controlled with simple head movements, making enemy targeting and object evasion a doddle. Collect enough coins and you'll kick into high speed flight with Rainbow mode. Lamper VR: Firefly Rescue both takes you back to classic gaming while pulling you into the future of VR all at once.
21	End Space VR	£0.99 (US$0.99, AU$1.99)	Take control of a spacecraft, with guns, and unleash on enemy space fighters. It's a sci-fi dream come true. Since space is the ultimate 360 experience End Space VR takes advantage of the virtual reality world perfectly, allowing you to look and go in all directions. Thanks to top graphics and 3D immersive audio you'll be forgiven for getting totally lost in this one. Upgrade your ships and weapons to take on the ever more difficult waves of

22	Fractal Combat X	free	This fighter jet shooter was created primarily as a normal game and has had VR support added. This is a good thing, as the original Fractal Combat X was graphically stunning and the gameplay was fast-paced and addictive. Making it VR-friendly just adds to the awesome. New missions are added daily and MFi gaming controllers are supported, as are Google Cardboard-style VR visors. While the game is free be warned there are in-app purchases to be had. That said, any purchase will disable ads so it could be worth it.
23	Google Street View	free	Google Street View already has nearly the entire planet photographed in 360-degree photos. What better app to adapt for virtual reality? Strap on your VR headset and you can go anywhere in the world and look around as if you were really there. Imagine classrooms in the future taking children all over the planet to explore, rather than just seeing sites in a textbook. Very exciting stuff indeed, and of course it's all free.
24	Roller Coaster VR	free	What's a VR experience if it doesn't involve a roller coaster? We had to get one on the list. Roller Coaster VR isn't just a normal roller coaster though, as it'll take you to exotic locations on a tropical island. So not only will you be shaken up but you'll be mildly stirred by the beauty of nature at the same time. Try that combo on for size with a phone strapped to your face, we dare you. Apple might have a secret team working on a VR
